

Diversity Means...

By Y

sova

Diversity means being a swimmer, a gymnast, a hockey player.

All so different, and yet the same.

All have dreams, goals, thoughts, yearnings,

And almost all say a prayer.

They all have just one name,

But you can call them many different things.

Diversity means living in the melting pot.

Go anywhere in the United States,

And you will be greeted by many fates.

No matter if it's cold or hot.

Altogether, living side by side,

Mixing and forming their own culture,

A multi-colored tide.

Diversity means going to school.

So many together in one small space,

Immutable, they make one face.

An invaluable tool,

Our children's young minds.

They are the ones that the future binds.

Diversity means the world as one.

From Pangaea, to Earth as we know it.

And yet, it never does just sit.

The world is not done.

It is changing, and so are we.

We belong to it, and that we don't always see.

We are all one, no matter what.

The Fates pull the string of our lives taut.
